Have you heard the great news about the Western Network for Access and Success?

Appalachian State University, Western Carolina University, and UNC-Asheville are now working together as NCACHE - the North Carolina Appalachian Collaborative for Higher Education. We are excited to be joining the other "ACHes" (Ohio, Georgia, Tennessee, and Virginia) across the Appalachian region in their ambitious efforts to increase the college-going rate in Appalachia.

We are looking forward to collaborating with you all. It will be a pleasure to be working together to increase the number of students in your community who continue their education directly after graduating from high school. Please call us (828.262.8016) or send an Email message if there is anything we can do to support you in realizing these efforts locally.

19 February 2011 is Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) Day

For information about FAFSA Day events in your community - please go to the FAFSA website
