November 2014 NCACHE News

It's that time of year where students are beginning to submit applications to college and plan for the future; and we wanted to remind you the North Carolina Application Week is November 10 - 14. The goal of College Application Week is to grant every high school senior the opportunity to apply to college.

We asked students who have gone through the college application process what they would tell those who are beginning the process; and they decided to create a list of the top three advice tips for High School seniors on College Applications:

1. Get the ball rolling early. If you already know the colleges you are interested in research what you will need to have to apply as early as you can.
2. Ask for help! Don't get bogged down if you aren't sure what you're doing. Parents, schools counselors, and other students can be great resources for college application help.

3. Keep up with all the information. College will be sending you information on what they need from you so check your email frequently.

Thanks to the college students who helped to compile all of this information, Mackenzie Gillis, Kyle Icenhour, William Vannoy.

NCACHE is committed to building strategic partnerships to strengthen our local communities through college access and success.
